In Charlemont District there will be two new schools one at Mt. Hermon and the cothe rat Ebenezer. All of these will be of the most modern type, built according to plans and specifications prepared by expert school architects. Cloak rooms have been prepared for even the smallest building, as well as arrangements for proper light and ventilation, etc. The new London Academy is specially worthy of mention in enumerating school improvements. This school has been designated as the "Agricultural High School of the Sixth Congressional District of Virginia" and receives a State appropriation of $3,000 annually. Northumberland High School, in Heathsville, opened last week, with Professor Reed, of Forest Depot, as principal; Risses Elisabeth Anderson, of Heathsville, grammar grade, and Carrie Pierson Stancham, Honasken, primary department. The attendance in each room was remarkably large. This is very unusual, as the children on the farme, from which the school gets a large part of its patronage, are generally unprepared to start this early in the session. From this and other indications it is predicted this will be a most successful year.
